Belsay Hall and Enchanting Gardens

Lose yourself in the vast 30 acre Grade I listed gardens. Follow through ravines cut out of rock to discover the Jurassic-feeling Quarry Garden.

Inspired by Sir Charles Monck's travels, the Quarry Garden has its own microclimate which means all sorts of exotic plants grow here.

Explore the stunning Greek Revival architecture of Grade 1 listed Belsay Hall.

Enjoy year-round seasonal interest in the formal Yew Garden and Magnolia Terrace. And if you're feeling energetic why not take the Crag Wood walk?

Victorian Tearoom

Once you've worked up a hunger from all of that exploring, make your way to the tearoom in the hall's original kitchen.

The team serve hot lunches, lighter bites & sweet treats. Quench your thirst with a drink or two.

The stotties really are the star of the show, we'd recommend the bacon & blue cheese.

Lots of the ingredients are locally sourced, including the scones which are made right here in the kitchen by the chef.

explore the Medieval Castle

Power up 56 spiral stairs to marvel at the view from the top of the 14th-century defensive 'pele tower' at the top of the ruined medieval castle. The castle was built as a refuge at a time of Anglo-Scottish warfare but it was also designed to impress.

Explore the maze of rooms and keep your eye out for rare traces of elaborate medieval wall paintings. In the manor house style wing you can still see the old cooking range and fireplaces.

The whole ensemble here is the creation of the Middleton family over more than seven centuries. The estate was owned almost continuously by the family from the 13th century, when Sir Richard de Middleton was Lord Chancellor to King Henry III.

Second Hand Bookshop

During your visit, enjoy browsing the second hand bookshop. Situated in the former laundry rooms in the old stable block, there are many books to choose from – fiction, specialist subjects, film DVDs and music CDs.

They just ask for a small donation for your purchases which goes towards the conservation work needed at Belsay Hall.

Belsay are always looking for donations so feel free to bring any unwanted books with you on your visit.
